INSTRUCTIONS TO FIELDWORKERS

1. Questionnaires must be filled in at the addresses printed on the cover of the questionnaire.
2. All the fieldwork will be checked. If dishonesty is established, the fieldworker concerned will be dismissed immediately without payment for the work he has already done.
3. When you arrive at a point of call, ask to speak to the head of the household. Explain to the household head who you are and what you are doing. Give the letter of introduction to him/her to read or read it aloud if necessary.
4. If the head refuses to give you any information go to the next household on your list. Report refusals to the person in charge of the survey.
5. Give the respondents enough time to answer the questions clearly and fully.
6. Not one question or item in the questionnaire is unnecessary.
7. Do not try to influence the respondent or put words in his mouth. If you think he has given wrong answers deliberately, make a note of it next to the questions on the questionnaire.
8. After completing a questionnaire, go through it to make sure that you have not skipped any questions.
9. Encourage respondents to look up records as far as possible.

10. Parts of the questionnaire must be completed for all persons living at the specified address, other parts refer only to migratory workers, while still other parts must only be completed for household members.

A multiple household consists of one or more families, or a group of two or more persons, dependent on a common or pooled income, and usually living in the same house. Its members need not necessarily be related by blood or marriage. Persons who usually sleep and eat under the same roof and, generally speaking, are bound by domestic and economic ties, comprise a household unit. A multiple household includes members who are in legal custody or in hospital (for a period of less than six months), away on holiday, and at boarding school. A family member working and living away from home is not regarded as a member of the household. Married or unmarried working children and other working relatives living and eating with the family are not considered to be members of the household, unless they contribute the larger part of their income to the household.

A single household consists of one person who is financially independent of any person or household group although he may be supporting persons elsewhere. A person who rents a room in a house and eats all his meals with the household, but pays all his own major expenses, including board and lodging, is not regarded as a member of that household, but is considered to be a household on his own.

Migratory workers are family members working inside or outside Venda who are temporarily away from home.
