14. What were the different stages in your sampling procedure?

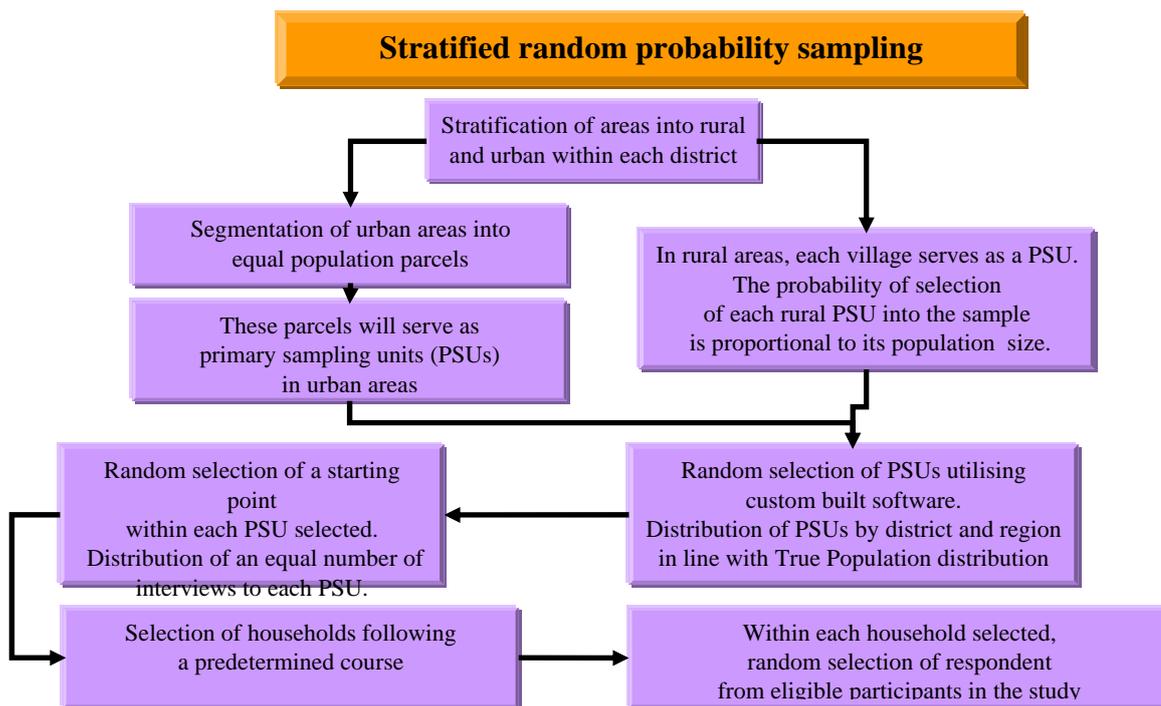

PLEASE WRITE IN:

- Stage One: Areas of the island were divided into rural and urban areas based on the latest available Population Census. Urban settlements were further subdivided into smaller segments of approximately equal population size (1000 residents) and each constituted a Primary Sampling Unit (PSU). In rural areas, each village was considered as an individual PSU, with a probability of being selected that is proportionate to its population size..
- Stage Two: A number of PSUs were selected at random based on the sample size using purpose-built software. The selection of PSUs by area was in-line with the size of the True Population.
- Stage Three: Within each urban PSU selected, a street was randomly selected to serve as the starting point for household selection. In rural areas (villages) the starting point was the temple in the centre of the village.
- Stage Four: Given a starting point, interviewers proceeded in a predetermined fashion, selecting every 3rd household they encountered in the sample. For each starting point an equal number of interviews was allocated (10). Presented below is the route that interviewers followed in order to cover the required number of interviews in each area. Given a starting point, the interviewer commenced his/ her route in a clockwise fashion walking on the right hand side of the street covering block A and knocking on the door of every third household encountered. If the required number of interviews was not covered in block A, then the interviewer would cross over to block B and continue walking on the right hand side of the street. The interviewer would continue around block B until the required number of interviews was conducted. If this did not occur, then the interviewer would cross over to block C following the same procedure as before and would continue selecting households until the required number of interviews were carried out.

- Stage Five: In each household selected, screening questions were used at the beginning of the interview to filter out respondents not eligible for participation in the study. Following this, the names and birth dates of all inhabitants eligible to participate in the survey were recorded. The person with the last birthday before the date of the interview was chosen for the interview. In the event that the selected individual was absent, or the residents of the selected household were absent, the interviewer would make two additional attempts to locate them (one of these would be on the same day). In the event that the interviewer could not locate the individual (or there was no answer at all during the second and/ or third visit) then the selected household was substituted by another household from the same strata.

15. What was the final number of clusters or sampling points?

No clusters

WRITE IN:

16. What was the sampled unit you got from office sampling?

Address → ANSWER Q17

Household → ANSWER Q17

Named individual → GO TO Q18

17. What selection method was used to identify a respondent?
PLEASE SPECIFY:

18. Were there any quota-controls on the type of individual selected to take part in the survey (for example, age or sex controls)?

No → GO TO Q20

Yes → ANSWER Q21

No → GO TO Q22

IF 'YES'

21. In what way was substitution permitted?

PLEASE WRITE IN:

In each household chosen in the sample, the interviewer would make up to three attempts to locate the person eligible to be interviewed. If the three attempts did not yield an interview then the household was replaced by the next eligible household on the interviewer's route.

EVERYONE PLEASE ANSWER

22. Did you use any stratification factors when drawing your sample?

Yes → ANSWER Q23

No → GO TO Q24

IF STRATIFICATION FACTORS USED

23. What stratification factors were used, and at what stage(s) of selection?

PLEASE WRITE IN:

Please see response to Q14 for complete explanation of stratification and sampling.

Stage 1: Urban Vs. Rural

Stage 2: Allocation of PSUs by area

Stage 3: Starting points within PSUs

Stage 4: Selection of every nth household

Stage 5: Selection of person with most recent birthday

EVERYONE PLEASE ANSWER

24. All in all, what are the known limitations of your realized sample?

For example: non-response rate; is there differential coverage of particular groups, either because of sample design or response differences?

% response or % non-response: PLEASE WRITE IN:
