FW Methodology: Random Sampling, National Coverage

This is further documentation to detail & clarify on issues raised by client while analysing the Egypt data. Clarifications on 1) our use of the Kish Grid during fieldwork for respondent selection 2) the over representation of female sample 3) V256, rural/urban distribution & 4) V228 Political Parties.

- 1. How we used Kish Grid to select eligible respondent: We use & have used in this study the Kish Grid to select the eligible respondent to be interviewed in the H/H depending on the H/H composition (in this case, all H/H members 18 yrs. +) & NOT to establish the next age/sex group to which our next eligible respondent needs to belong to. Accordingly, it did happen often that we interview the same sex/age group in the next survey & the 3rd survey as well. Respondent was selected via Kish Grid basis the last digit of questionnaire serial # (at top of grid) vs. total # of members in house over 18 yrs. (at side of grid).
- 2. Over representation of female sample: Having looked at the sampling process, all steps seem to have been carried out correctly, including Kish Grid administration to select eligible respondent. What we found, by manually going through a sample of the questionnaires, is that majority of respondents claimed to only have 2 members in the house who are 18 years old +. This seems to have led to the female selection in the majority of the cases. We can share the output of that analysis we did to come to the above outcome if needed.
- 3. V256, Rural/Urban Distribution: Egypt DP found that initially the sav file we received showed that some of the regions had been placed incorrectly during the cross tab between Governorate & Region/Centre. Accordingly, we in Egypt corrected the cross tabs, assigning each centre to its proper governorate, that is crossing variable "Vb_Egypt" "City_Egypt" with " Va" " Interview region". Below table reflect that's correction. Accordingly, this issue is resolved.

4. V228, Political Parties: We double checked the coding & entry of this question. Below columns "A" & "B" extracted from sav. file we received. Column "C" reflects actual respondent verbatim, where we then had coded under "None". Kindly review & let us know in case we need to re-code elsewhere.
