Questionnaire:

Broad topics covered are work, the meaning and purpose of life, family life, and contemporary social issues. Respondents were asked to rate the importance of work, family, friends, leisure time, politics, and religion in their lives. They were also asked how satisfied they were with their present lives, whether they discussed political matters, and how they viewed society.

Sample:

In India the survey was stratified to cover 14 states representing different geographic and socioeconomic regions of the country, with 2500 interviews distributed among these states in proportion to their population. Within these 14 states, about 10 percent of the Parliamentary Constituencies were selected and 50 interviews allocated to each one. The interviews were then stratified according to town size, allocating 90% of the interviews to be carried out with the literate part of the public. Within this segment, interviews were stratified according to education. Interviews were carried out in the eight most widely-spoken languages of India, but the rural 10 percent of the sample was conconfined to the five Hindi-speaking states in the sample. In India, the sample was stratified to allocate 90% of the respondents with literate respondents (who are slightly less than 50% of the population)
