Survey of activities of young people 1999

Second Phase Questionnaire

READ OUT:

In our first interview we gathered information about a wide group of households in this area. We have now taken a sample of households with young people to get more information on their activities, and you were one of the households selected. This information will relate to the young person's schooling, helping in the house, and any other activities that they may be engaged in, such as helping in a family business. We would like to ask more questions both of the adults in your household and of these young people themselves. This information will give us good basic information on young people and their lives.

For adults I will first ask questions relating to their activity status and characteristics. I will also ask questions about their attitudes to the activities of the young people in the household.

For the young people I would like to interview the young people themselves after I have obtained the information on the adults. I will be asking the young people more detailed information on their activities and their attitudes to them. This is best obtained from the young people themselves.

Firstly I need to confirm the usual residents and long term visitors in your household.

FORMAL/INFORMAL GUIDE

Informal Businesses include those small scale activities which keep no accounts or very elementary ones such that their business affairs are not differentiated from their private affairs. Often such businesses have no employees and are often conducted from the persons house or nearby, or on footpaths, or with no fixed location. If the business has employees they are often employed casually with no formal agreements. They can have fixed locations e.g. Spaza shops or Shabeens but should not keep full accounts or have other formal characteristics.

Formal Businesses include those businesses registered as Companies or Closed Corporations; those who keep complete sets of accounts; those who register and pay contributions to the Unemployment Insurance Fund (UIF) or the Compensation Commission (CC) for their employees; those who are members of professional associations such as the Medical Practitioners association, Real Estate Guild etc..
