INSTRUCTIONS

This questionnaire gathers information about your school, your students and the subject you teach. The information you provide is confidential, we won't share it neither to your colleagues nor to any other person at the school. There are not right or wrong answers, we are only interested in your opinion on some issues. It is important that you read carefully each question before you answer any of them.

In this questionnaire you will find different types of questions, as shown in the examples below.

QUESTIONS WITH MULTIPLE CHOICE CHARTS:

Example 1

In this type of questions mark with a cross (X) under the option you choose for each row or alternative. You should only choose one answer for each row. Look at the following example:

In this case, if you checked the option Always it means that you play sports every day.

QUESTIONS WITH YES/NO CHARTS:

Example 2

If you do something else on your free time that is not a listed option, for example, "to be with my family", then write "to be with my family" in the blank space of the "Other option" and mark with a cross (X) the option corresponding to "Yes".

MULTIPLE CHOICE QUESTIONS

Of all the events in human history, the one that calls a greater number of spectators is neither a political event nor a special celebration of some achievement on arts or sciences, but a simple ball game.

This sport, as we know, is the one that has caused more interest among men and women. It's not enough for fans to just dress up, cheer, clap or boo. Thus, fans have gradually developed a special repertoire of collective manifestations.

Today we can say that there isn't a place in the world where this sport, also called the "king sport", isn't practiced. The Arab, Asian and African countries have welcomed the practice of this sport successfully; these countries now have an important role in the world championships. It's in the United States where football's acceptance has been slower. For this reason, this country was chosen as the venue for the 1994 world cup hoping that it would increase the amount of fans.

The large number of followers turns football into a big business. It shouldn't surprise us the many millions of dollars earned on sports advertising, broadcasting rights, tickets and the whole range of articles related to the different teams.

Now, Mark with an X the correct answer to the following questions.

16. Where has football's acceptance been slower?

- A) Football fans.
  - B) The business around football.
  - C) Football championships.
  - D) Football's popularity.
20. Which option gives the best summary of the previous text?
- A) The show that gathers the most spectators is football. This sport is practiced in Asia, Africa and the Arab countries. United States has a great participation in the world cup since they hosted the 1994 world championship. The amount of millions of dollars that are gathered from selling tickets and football related items is surprisingly high.

  - C) Football gathers a huge number of spectators. Fans have developed many ways of celebrating. The popularity of the sport has reached the Arab, African and Asian countries, which practice it successfully. Definitely, football has become a big business.
  - D) This sport is so popular that it makes fans show their love by cheering or booing the football players. In 1994, United States hosted the world cup hoping it would increase their number of fans. Sporting publicity and broadcasting right sales have created a huge business out of this sport.

Read the following text carefully.

Of all the events in human history, the one that calls a greater number of spectators is neither a political event nor a special celebration of some achievement on arts or sciences, but a simple ball game.

This sport, as we know, is the one that has caused more interest among men and women. It's not enough for fans to just dress up, cheer, clap or boo. Thus, fans have gradually developed a special repertoire of collective manifestations.

Today we can say that there isn't a place in the world where this sport, also called the "king sport", isn't practiced. The Arab, Asian and African countries have welcomed the practice of this sport successfully; these countries now have an important role in the world championships. It's in the United States where football's acceptance has been slower. For this reason, this country was chosen as the venue for the 1994 world cup hoping that it would increase the amount of fans.

The large number of followers turns football into a big business. It shouldn't surprise us the many millions of dollars earned on sports advertising, broadcasting rights, tickets and the whole range of articles related to the different teams.

Now, Mark with an X the correct answer to the following questions.

5. Where has football's acceptance been slower?

- A) In the Arab countries.
- B) In the United States.
- C) In the Asian countries.
- D) In Africa.

- A) The sale of items related to football teams is very important.
- B) Fans dress up and clap during football matches.
- C) Football is a sport practiced all around the world.
- D) Football is practiced in the Arab and African countries.

7. According to the text we conclude that:

- A) football arouses interests around the world.
- B) soon, the United States will be world champion for the first time.
- C) football tickets will become more expensive.
- D) the football business is really in its publicity.

8. What's the main topic of the previous text?

- A) Football fans.
- B) The business around football.
- C) Football championships.
- D) Football's popularity.

9. Which option gives the best summary of the previous text?

- A) The show that gathers the most spectators is football. This sport is practiced in Asia, Africa and the Arab countries. The amount of millions of dollars that are gathered from selling tickets and football related items is surprisingly high.
- B) A simple ball game gathers a higher number of spectators than a political event or a special celebration. The fans of the “king sport” clap hands, cheer, and boo. Because of that they have developed a special repertoire of collective manifestations.
- C) Football gathers a huge number of spectators. Fans have developed many ways of celebrating. The popularity of the sport has reached the Arab, African and Asian countries, which practice it successfully. Definitely, football has become a big business.
- D) This sport is so popular that it makes fans show their love by cheering or booing the football players. In 1994, United States hosted the world cup hoping it would increase their number of fans. Sporting publicity and broadcasting right sales have created a huge business out of this sport.

Read the following text carefully:

Part of Peru's cultural richness is that it's a multilingual country. Studies show that forty four different languages are spoken here. With the exception of Spanish, the forty three languages are native to the country. For this reason they are called national languages. In the Andes, Quechua and Aimara are spoken, the two most popular languages. All the other national languages are spoken in the jungle region. You may have heard of Ashaninca or Aguaruna, two of the thirty eight indigenous amazonian languages.

Although Spanish – or Castellano, as it's called here – is not a native language of Peru, is the most widespread. About fifteen and a half million Peruvians over 5 years old speak Spanish around the country.

Quechua is the second most widely spread language in Peru. We have around three million two hundred thousand Quechua speakers. Most speak andean Quechua and about twenty two thousand speak amazonian Quechua. We might ask, is Quechua spoken on the coast region? Of course it is! In the capital, Lima, and in several cities in the coast there are immigrants who speak Quechua.

The third most widely spoken language in the country is Aimara. This language has close to half a million speakers. Most of them live in Puno, a trilingual department: Aimara, Quechua and Spanish are spoken.

The Amazon region gives the country its multilingual character because thirty eight different native or indigenous languages are spoken there. Each native language has very little speakers. Together, the speakers of all these languages reach half a million peruvians. Aguaruna is the most widely spoken language in the Amazon, followed by Shipibo-Conibo and Ashaninca.

In the same way there are plants and animals in danger of extinction, there are also languages in danger of disappearing. Some indigenous languages already died or are in the verge of dying with barely a few speakers. This is the case of eight Amazonian languages. We must protect their speakers. Educating indigenous children in their own language as well as in Spanish is one way to do it. Spanish speakers must learn to respect Peruvians speaking native languages. We must remember these languages are part of the cultural wealth of our country.

Now, Mark with an X the correct answer to the following questions.

17. The languages in danger of extinction are:

- A) Aimara and Quechua.
- B) several languages from the Andes.
- C) Aguaruna and Shipibo-conibo.
- D) eight Amazonian languages.

18. Which of the following is the most important idea in the previous text?

- A) Castellano is not native to Peru.
- B) There is an Andean Quechua and an Amazonian Quechua.
- C) Castilian and Quechua are the most widely spread languages in Peru.
- D) Quechua is also spoken in the coast.

19. According to the text we can conclude that:

- A) cultures live together in Peru.
- B) multilingualism is a national problem.
- C) all native languages are disappearing.
- D) Castellano is the best language for Peru's development.

20. What was the previous text about?

- A) Native languages.
- B) Multilingualism in Peru.
- C) The reality of Quechua and Aimara speakers.
- D) The multiple languages found in the coast and the jungle.

21. Which option gives the best summary of the previous text?

- A) In Peru, 44 languages are spoken, which constitutes a cultural wealth that must be respected and taken care of. Castellano, which isn't native from America, is the most widely spoken language in all regions followed by Quechua and Aimara. There are 38 of languages spoken in the jungle; some of them are in danger of extinction.
- B) Peru is a country of many languages: Spanish, Quechua, Aimara, Aguaruna, Shipibo-conibo, and Ashaninca are spoken here, among others. Quechua and Aimara are spoken in the Andes; the other native languages are typical of the Amazon region.
- C) Castellano, Quechua and Aimara are the three most widely spread languages in our country, where a total of 44 are spoken. Every language is important. Some languages have millions of speakers; others only hundreds. Most of the 44 languages are spoken in the jungle.
- D) Peru is a country of many languages. Castellano is the most popular language. Quechua is the second most popular language. Aimara is also a well known language, especially in Puno. There are many Amazonian languages and some of them are in danger of extinction, that's why they must be respected and taken care of.

Read the following text carefully:

Imagine there is a contest in which you are told to give Earth a new name. How would you call it? If you look at the surface of the earth from space, you could call it Oceana. This would probably be a good name because around 71% of the earth's surface is covered with water, and most of the water – around 97% - can be found in oceans.

Although every ocean and every sea have a different name, they all form one continuous mass of water. The Atlantic, Indian and Pacific are three major oceans. Other masses of water, such as the Mediterranean Sea, Black Sea and the Arctic Ocean are considered part of the Atlantic Ocean. A sea is a part of an ocean almost completely surrounded by land.

The Pacific Ocean is the biggest in Earth. Its surface and volume are greater than the Atlantic Ocean and the Indian Ocean combined. The Pacific is also the deepest, with an average depth of 3 350 meters. Although the Indian Ocean is much smaller than the Atlantic, its average depth is greater.

The ocean, formed by salt water, carries an important role in the water cycle. In this cycle, the sun's rays heat the ocean surface. Heat makes water evaporate and change from its liquid phase to gas. Evaporated water, which is pure, enters the atmosphere as water vapor. The salt stays in the ocean.

Wind drags most of the water vapor back towards the earth surface. Part of this vapor condenses in the form of clouds and, with the right conditions, it falls in the form of precipitation (rain, snow and hail). Part of this water goes to rivers and streams and ends back in the ocean. The other part filters through the rocks and soil and becomes part of the groundwater beneath the surface of the Earth. As you may see, the ocean is a source of fresh water for all living things.

Now, Mark with an X the correct answer to the following questions.

22. Why could we call “Oceana” to the Earth?

- A) Because water vapor precipitates to form the oceans.
- B) Because Oceans are formed by salt water.
- C) Because most of its surface is covered with water.
- D) Because the Pacific Ocean is the deepest.

23. Which of the following is the most important idea in the previous text?

- A) Oceans have a very important role in the water cycle.
- B) Atlantic Ocean is bigger than the Indian Ocean.
- C) Pacific Ocean is the deepest in Earth.
- D) Mediterranean Sea and Arctic Ocean are part of the Atlantic Ocean.

24. According to the text, we can conclude that salt water turns into fresh water when:

- A) it falls in the form of rain.
- B) it filters through the rocks.
- C) water cools.
- D) water evaporates.

25. What is the previous text about?

- A) Seas and rivers.
- B) Oceans and the water cycle
- C) The biggest oceans in the world.
- D) The effect of the wind and rain.

26. Which option gives the best summary of the previous text?

- A) 71% of the Earth is covered by water found in the oceans. Oceans are essential in the water cycle because precipitations are originated there, which fall to the rivers and streams as fresh water.
- B) The Earth should be called Oceana since 97% of its water is found in oceans. The main oceans are the Atlantic, Indian and Pacific. The ocean, formed by salt water, originates fresh water thanks to evaporation and condensation.
- C) The Ocean, formed by salt water, plays an important role in the cycle of water evaporation. Earth has several oceans; the Pacific is the biggest one and it’s where rivers and streams are originated.
- D) Earth’s new name should be Oceana because there are several oceans like the Atlantic, Indian and Pacific. Seas are part of the oceans. The ocean is formed by salt water that turns later into fresh water.

INSTRUCTIONS

In this document we present you some Math exercises solved by fourth grade students of elementary school. Remember there are no right or wrong answers, we are interested on knowing the mistakes that students usually make when they are learning math. Please, look carefully to students responses and answer the following questions.

You will find questions like the examples listed below, please take a look at them:

Example 1

Martin is given the following exercise on a test:

$$15 + 10 = \underline{\hspace{2cm}}$$

Below is the wrong answer given by Martin. While it is impossible to know for certain why Martin was wrong, we ask that you please analyze his response and tell us the most likely reason why Martin made the mistake. This is Martin's answer:

$$15 + 10 = \overset{5}{\underline{\hspace{2cm}}}$$

Why did Martin answer incorrectly?

Mark with a cross (X) only one answer.

- a)  The student has a miscalculation.
- b)  The student confuses addition with subtraction.
- c)  The student wrote a random number.

In this example a teacher marked option b). This answer means that this teacher thinks Martin confused the addition operation with the subtraction operation and therefore went wrong on his response.

Example 2

Juana was given the next exercise in a test and this is what she answered:

$$27 \div 3 = \overset{30}{\underline{\hspace{2cm}}}$$

While it is impossible to know for certain why she was wrong, we ask that you please analyze her response and tell us the most likely reason why Juana made the mistake.

Why do you think Juana answered incorrectly?

Mark with a cross (X) only one answer.

- a)  The student wrote a random number.
- b)  The student has a miscalculation.
- c)  The student confuses division with addition.

Now, please, answer the following questions.

1. Sometimes, children make mistakes when multiplying. For example, in the exercise below, Sara made a mistake.

$$\begin{array}{r}
 13 \times \\
 15 \\
 \hline
 65 + \\
 13 \\
 \hline
 78
 \end{array}$$

What is the most likely reason why Sara has made this mistake?

Mark with a cross (X) only one answer.

NK<sub>77</sub>

RA<sub>79</sub>

- a) <sub>01</sub> She confused addition with multiplication
- b) <sub>02</sub> She did not remember to add a 0 to the number 13
- c) <sub>03</sub> She did not remember to add 0 to the number 65
- d) <sub>04</sub> She did not understand anything about multiplication

2. Carmen recently learned to regroup (or “to borrow”) when she is subtracting, and at first she got correct answers. But soon there were difficulties. Take a look at her exercises.

$$\begin{array}{r}
 38^7 4 \\
 - 59 \\
 \hline
 325
 \end{array}
 \qquad
 \begin{array}{r}
 17^6 6 \\
 - 23 \\
 \hline
 143
 \end{array}
 \qquad
 \begin{array}{r}
 19^3 7 \\
 - 43 \\
 \hline
 144
 \end{array}$$

What is the most likely reason why Carmen has made this mistake?

Mark with a cross (X) only one answer.

NK<sub>77</sub>

RA<sub>79</sub>

- a) <sub>01</sub> She begins correctly but forgets what she has learned for later examples
- b) <sub>02</sub> She regroups or ‘borrows’ even when she does not need to
- c) <sub>03</sub> She confuses procedures for subtraction and division
- d) <sub>04</sub> She has not understood anything about regrouping or ‘borrowing’
