1. Introduction

Victims of crime statistics are population estimates of the level of crime in South Africa derived from GPSJS 2018/19 data and previous VOCS data. These estimates complement crime statistics provided by the South African Police Service (SAPS). VOCS is able to provide estimates of the total number of crime incidences while SAPS statistics provide total number of reported cases. For crimes such as consumer fraud, only a small proportion of the victims report the crime to the police. Moreover, VOCS statistics also report on residents' feelings of safety, perceptions on crime and satisfaction with the police, courts and correctional services. Such information is indispensable in the monitoring of development goals.

Since 2011 the key questions on which household estimates of Victims of Crime statistics were based were "In the past 12 months have you or any member of the household experienced [.....]. If yes, how many times?" followed by "How many were successful in the past 12 months?" The interviewer would replace the dots with a specific type of crime from a list of 12. We have long realised that this is not the best way to ask the questions but decided not to change to avoid breaking the series. The demand for international reporting such as SDGs, SHaSA and Agenda 2063 created an opportunity to change and align the questions with these demands while maintaining relevance to national demands. It was therefore decided to change the questions and take the risk of breaking the crime series. In the new GPSJS 2018/19 questionnaire, the first question is divided into two. The first is "Have you or any member of your household experienced housebreaking in the past 12 months?" and the second is "How many times have you or any member of your household experienced housebreaking in the past 12 months?" The follow-up question "How many were successful in the past 12 months?" has been dropped from the GPSJS survey because respondents would interpret the word 'successful' in different ways, and in some cases it would be considered insensitive to ask the question.

Evidence from the GPSJS 2018/19 data has shown that the changes significantly affect the frequency of crime incidences captured, and consequently the estimates are also affected. There is therefore a break of series in the estimates of crime from VOCS to GPSJS. The statistics reported in this report must therefore be taken as baseline statistics for the GPSJS series. However, there is no break of series for questions that remained the same, for example questions on perceptions of crime. In particular, there is also no break to the five-year crime series arising from the question "In the past 5 years have you or any member of the household experienced any of the following crimes?" because no change was made to this question. Since the pattern of the five-year series is similar to that of the twelve-months series, it is possible to determine whether crime increased or decreased between 2017/18 and 2018/19 using the five-year series.

2. Aim of the survey

The primary aim of the Victims of Crime Survey is to establish the prevalence of particular kinds of crime within a certain population. This may be victimisation experienced by individuals or households. Data from victimisation surveys can be used to supplement official police-recorded crime statistics. The objectives of the survey are to:

- Provide information about the dynamics of crime from the perspective of households and the victims of crime.
- Explore public perceptions of the activities of the police, prosecutors, courts and correctional services in the prevention of crime and victimisation.
- Provide complementary data on the level of crime within South Africa in addition to the statistics published annually by the South African Police Service (SAPS).

3. Target population

The target population of the survey consists of all private households in all nine provinces of South Africa, as well as residents in workers' hostels. The survey does not cover other collective living quarters such as students' hostels, old-age homes, hospitals, prisons and military barracks. It is only representative of non-institutionalised and non-military persons or households in South Africa.

4. Purpose of this document

This document provides sufficient information that will allow users to properly use and interpret statistical information, as well as understand the properties of data. To make sure that information is interpretable, this metadata will give descriptions of the underlying concepts, variables and classifications that have been used, and the method of data collection, processing and estimation used in the production of statistics.

5. Structure of the document

The GPSJS 2018/19 data is presented in numerous files, which include flat files, ASCII, fixed field files, with one line of a given length per record. These formats make the data usable with as many statistical programs as possible, thus making it accessible to a wider range of users.

The files and the corresponding sections of the questionnaire are as follows:

Person file: Contains information from the Person Information section of the questionnaire

Household file: Contains Household Information, Household Living Conditions (Section 1), Courts (Section 2) and Experience of household crime information (Section 3)

Individual file: Contains information on General Health and Functioning and Economic Activities (Section 4), Individual experience of crime (Section 5), Legitimacy, voice & Equity (Section 6), Experience of disputes/problems (Section 7), Individual Perceptions on crime (Section 8) and Individual Experience of Crime (Section 9)

Since this metadata is mainly for the public use of microdata files, information in each file contains the following:

- Nature of records in the file and population covered
- Description of variables
- Questions
- Codelist

Description of the variables

The description of the variables comprises the following information:

Descriptive name: This is a short English description plus the variable name in the original file used by Stats SA to construct the ASCII file.

Position of the variable: The position of the data within the record, recorded in the format (@xxx y.). '@xxx' indicates that the data begins at position (i.e. column) xxx and 'y' indicates that it is y digits wide. All data is numeric. All data is right justified.

Source: This is either the question in the questionnaire or, for derived variables, the method of derivation. Derived variables are usually found towards the end of a file.

Valid range: The range of valid values for the variable. For continuous variables this reflects the upper and lower limits as found in the data.

Not applicable: A numeric code for 'not applicable' is provided for each variable.

Missing value: A code for 'missing/unspecified' values is given for each variable.

Notes to user: Specific observations to be noted by users.

Linking files: The data from different files can be linked on the basis of a record identifier. A unique number is the record identifier in the first field/s of each file and is unique to each record.

All records with a given unique number belong to the same household.

6. Accessibility of data

Users can access the questionnaire and publications, explore and download the microdata in various formats, i.e. SAS, SPSS, Stata, etc. from StatsOnline at www.statssa.gov.za.

7. Survey requirements and design

The sample design, data collection, structural editing and imputation, and the weighting process and response rates are discussed below.

7.1 Sample design

The Master Sample of 2013 (MS 2013) has been designed to satisfy the needs of all Statistics South Africa household surveys. It is a stratified two-stage design with sampling of primary sampling units (PSUs) at the first stage, and dwelling units (DUs) at the second stage. Its design caters for household surveys that would need a dwelling unit sample smaller or larger than the regular household survey. During the creation of MS 2013, four additional samples of PSUs of the same size as the Master Sample were selected from the same design stratum to cater for any larger surveys.

In the transition from Paper and Pencil Interviewing (PAPI) to Computer-Assisted Personal Interviewing (CAPI) and the use of the Geospatial Information Frame (GIF), one of the four PSU samples from the Census 2011 PSU frame was identified as the new MS that will serve the needs for all the household surveys that are transitioning to CAPI in 2018. A new set of PSUs was used as the MS in order to avoid potential dwelling unit sample overlap across different surveys.

The identified MS is based on a stratified two-stage design with probability proportional to size (PPS) sampling of primary sampling units (PSUs) in the first stage, and systematic sampling of dwelling units (DUs) in the second stage. The MS has 3 324 PSUs and it has been divided into four rotation groups. Thus, each rotation group has 831 PSUs.

The selected 3 324 PSUs were sent to Geography division for the creation of the up-to-date DU frame to be used in the selection of the dwelling unit sample. There were three conceptually split PSUs (as per MS design) in the MS PSUs based on GIF information. This resulted in 3 324 PSUs, but on the ground they are represented by 3 321 unique PSUs. Out of the 3 324 PSUs, 3 313 PSUs had dwelling units to sample from while no sample could be drawn from 11 PSUs.

The dwelling units were selected using the systematic sampling method with a specified sample take of around 10 DUs per PSU. A total of 27 071 DUs were sampled.

7.2 Data collection

Statistics South Africa is committed to meeting the highest ethical standards in its data collection processes. In addition to being bound to the Statistics Act (Act No. 6 of 1999), the VOCS, due to its sensitive nature, required additional measures to ensure that the integrity and well-being of the respondents are protected. The GPSJS 2018/19 Survey Officer Training Manual deals with the important areas of ethical considerations. It addresses the protection of respondents by means of informed consent and the protection of privacy and confidentiality, as well as data dissemination standards in more detail.

7.3 Editing and imputation

Data was checked for valid range, logic and consistency. At each stage of checking, data was edited to ensure consistency. Data editing is concerned with the identification and, if possible, the correction of erroneous or highly suspect survey data.

The focus of the editing process was on clearing skip violations and ensuring that each variable only contains valid values. Very few limits to valid values were set and data was largely released as it was received from the field.

When testing for skip violations and doing automated editing, the following are some of the general rules that were applied in cases where one question follows the filter question and the skip is violated:

- If the filter question had a missing value, the filter is allocated the value that corresponds with the subsequent question which had a valid value.
- If the values of the filter question and subsequent question(s) are inconsistent, the filter question's value is set to missing and imputed using logical imputation. The imputed value is then once again tested against the skip rule. If the skip rule remains violated, the question subsequent to the filter question is dealt with by either setting it to missing and imputing, or if that fails, printing a message of edit failure for further investigation, decision-making and manual editing.
- If the filter question and the values of subsequent question values were inconsistent, a counter is set to see what proportion of the subsequent questions have been completed. In most cases the 50% rule was applied. If 50% of the subsequent questions have been completed, the filter question's value is modified to correspond with the fact that the rest of the questions in the set were completed. If less than 50% of the subsequent questions in the set were completed, the value of the filter question is set to missing, and imputed using either the hot-deck or nearest neighbour imputation techniques. The imputed value is then once again tested against the skip rule. If the skip rule remains violated, the questions in the set that follows the filter question are set to missing.

When dealing with internal inconsistencies, as much as possible was done using logical imputation, i.e. information from other questions is compared with the inconsistent information. If other evidence is found to back up either of the two inconsistent viewpoints, the inconsistency is resolved accordingly. If the internal consistency remains, the question subsequent to the filter question is dealt with by either setting it to missing and imputing its value, or printing a message of edit failure for further investigation, decision-making and manual editing.

7.4 The weighting process and response rates

Summary of the Weighting Process

The final step in processing survey data is the assignment of sample weights to each survey record, respectively, for the Governance, Public Safety and Justice Survey (GPSJS) 2018/19. This is done at person, household and individual levels.

The weighting process involves several steps, which are described in this report. Each record has an initial design weight that corresponds to the inverse of the probability of selection. Adjustments are made to the design weight to account for primary sampling units (PSUs) that were sub-sampled due to growth or those that were segmented (informal PSUs), non-coverage of very small census enumeration areas (EAs) that were excluded at the design phase, and unit non-response. The extreme adjusted base weights are trimmed to limit the variation in the weights, and thereby dampening large variances in the survey estimates. In the final weighting step, the trimmed adjusted base weights are adjusted so that the respective aggregate totals match with independently derived population and household estimates for various age, race and gender groups at national, provincial and metropolitan areas for the person, household and individual level weights. One feature of the person level weighting process is the 'Integrated Household Weighting' approach that assigns all person records within a household the same weight.

Preparation of the Survey Data for Weighting

In order to construct the respective sample weights, person, household and individual level weights, for the GPSJS 2018/19, a household level dataset, a person level dataset, a "head of household" level dataset and an individual level dataset were required. The current section accounts for how these input datasets were prepared using the survey data received from the survey area, and were last modified on the 1st of July 2019.

Household Dataset

The household dataset (also called cover page dataset) must account for all dwelling units (DUs) in the GPSJS sample in 2018/19. It should include all households associated with the sampled DUs, including those sampled DUs that are out-of-scope or without survey data. The preparation includes checks on the final result codes on the cover page dataset and the mapping of these codes to the three response categories used for weighting. A number of checks are conducted to ensure consistency between the household records on the cover page, the PSU sample, DU sample and person record datasets.

The 'GPSJS2018_19_FLAP_010719' dataset is a household/dwelling unit level dataset. It contained 27 359 records. The dataset was checked for the following:

- That all household records had a non-missing household identifier (uqno). If the dataset contained household records with a missing household identifier, then these records were excluded from the household dataset for weighting purposes.
- That all household records were unique on the household dataset based on the household identifier. If the dataset contained households with duplicate records, the additional records (duplicates) were excluded from the household dataset for weighting purposes, keeping only a single unique record per household.
- That all household records were associated with a survey date that is consistent with the survey period. If the dataset contained household records with survey dates that did not correspond with the survey period, then the household was enumerated outside the survey period and was out of period. These records were excluded from the household dataset for weighting purposes.
- Against the PSU sample datasets, if the household dataset contained households such that the corresponding PSU is not on the respective sample dataset, then the household was enumerated in error and is out of sample. These records were excluded from the household dataset for weighting purposes.

All the household records on the cover page dataset were unique with a non-missing household identifier within a valid PSU segment number corresponding to the PSU sample dataset. Further, the survey dates associated with the household records should not be validated to be consistent with the survey period of 1 April 2018 to 31 March 2019, due to lack of appropriate survey date variable in the data. Therefore, it was assumed that all records were enumerated within the survey period.

The cover page dataset provides the final result codes for each household. The final result codes are used to define the three response categories that are used in constructing the sample weights: 1 = Respondent, 2 = Non-respondent, and 3 = Out-of-scope. Therefore the final result code should not have any missing or invalid values. The mapping of the final result codes to the three response categories is given in Table 1 below.

The household dataset was further checked against the DU sample dataset:

- If the DU sample dataset contained sampled dwellings such that the corresponding dwelling is not on the household dataset, then the sampled dwelling was either not visited or no questionnaire was completed/processed. These DU records were added onto the household dataset as non-respondents under the assumption that these DUs at least contained a single eligible household.
- If the household dataset contained households such that the corresponding DU is not on the respective sample dataset, then the household was enumerated in error and is out of sample. These records were excluded from the household dataset for weighting purposes.

A total of 13 DU records, shown in Appendix 1, had no corresponding dwelling on the household dataset and were added onto the household dataset with response category equal to 2 (non-respondent) under the assumption that these DUs at least contained a single eligible household, while all household records contained in the household dataset corresponded with a DU from the sample dataset and are in sample.

The household dataset was also checked against the valid person dataset. If the household dataset contained respondent households such that the corresponding respondent household were not on the valid person dataset, then the response codes on the household dataset were changed from 'respondent' to 'non-respondent'. All respondent household records had a corresponding household on the valid person dataset.

The valid household dataset used in the construction of the person level sample weights contained 27 372 records.

Table shows the distribution of the response codes on the valid household dataset nationally and provincially. A total of 5 026 household records were classified as out-of-scope for the GPSJS 2018/19. Since out-of-scope households do not contribute to the survey estimates, these records were excluded from the weighting process. Therefore, only the respondent and non-respondent household records were used for constructing the sample weights. Out of the 22 346 in-scope household records, 3 330 (14,90%) were non-respondent households. The non-respondent households were excluded from the household dataset after applying the non-response adjustments during weighting. The final person weighted dataset therefore contained 19 016 respondent households.

Person Dataset

The person dataset must account for all valid persons enumerated for each of the respondent households; it should include at least one valid person record associated with each of the respondent households. The preparation includes checks on the validity of the person records and the calibration variables on the person dataset. A number of checks are conducted to ensure consistency between the person, the PSU sample and valid household record datasets.

The 'GPSJS2018_19_PERSON_FINAL_010719' dataset is a person level dataset. It contained 68 570 records. The dataset was checked for the following:

- That all the person records had both a non-missing household identifier and person number (personno). If the dataset contained person records with either a missing household identifier or person number, then these records were excluded from the person dataset for weighting purposes.
- That all the person records were unique on the person dataset based on the person identifier (person_id). If the person dataset contained persons with duplicate records, the additional records (duplicates) were excluded from the person dataset for weighting purposes, keeping a single unique record per person.
- Against the PSU sample dataset, if the person dataset contained persons such that the corresponding PSU is not on the respective sample dataset, then the person was enumerated in error and is out of sample. These records were excluded from the person dataset for weighting purposes.

All the person records on the person dataset were unique with a non-missing household identifier and person number. Also, all person records had a valid PSU segment number that corresponded with the PSU sample dataset.

The survey dates associated with the person records on the person dataset should not be validated to be consistent with the survey period of 1 April 2018 to 31 March 2019, due to lack of appropriate survey date variable in the data. Therefore, it was assumed that all records were enumerated within the survey period.

The person dataset provides the demographic characteristics for age, race, and gender of the persons in the respondent households. The demographic variables and the geographic variables (province code and metropolitan area code) are used to construct calibration weights. Therefore, these variables should not have missing or invalid values. The geographic variables are available from the DU sample dataset and cannot have missing or invalid values. The person dataset was checked for the presence and validity of all demographic variables for all person records. If the dataset contained person records with invalid or missing values for at least one of the demographic variables, these records were excluded from the person dataset for weighting purposes.

All records on the person file contained valid values for the demographic variables, resulting in a total of 68 570 valid person records. The valid person records on the person dataset were checked against the valid respondent household on the household dataset. If the person dataset contained persons whose corresponding households on the household dataset were not a valid respondent household, these records were excluded from the person dataset for weighting purposes. All valid person records had a corresponding respondent household. The final person dataset used in the construction of the person level sample weights, taken to StatMx for calibration, contained 68 570 records.

Head of Household Dataset

The household head dataset used in constructing the household level sample weights must account for all valid household heads associated with the respondent households, including those respondent households without a valid 'head of household'. In addition to the validity and consistency checks conducted in the preparation of the valid household and person datasets, a number of checks are conducted in preparation of the 'head of household' dataset.

The valid household dataset contained 27 372 household records, with 19 016 respondent households (Table 3 above). The 'GPSJS2018_19_HHOLD_FINAL_010719' dataset is a household-level dataset. It contained 19 016 records with household head information. The following additional checks were conducted:

- The respondent households on the valid household dataset were checked against the household heads contained within the valid person dataset. If the valid household dataset contained respondent households such that the corresponding respondent household on the valid person dataset did not contain a 'head of household', then the response codes on the household dataset used in constructing the household level sample weights were changed from 'respondent' to 'non-respondent'.
- The 'head of household' on the valid person dataset should be 12 years and older to be considered a valid 'head of household' for the purposes of GPSJS 2018/19. If the valid household dataset contained respondent households where the age of the 'head of household' was below the 12-year threshold, the responding household records would be considered without a valid 'head of household'. The response codes on the household dataset used in constructing the household level sample weights for these household records were changed from 'respondent' to 'non-respondent'.
- Furthermore, the 'head of household' on the valid person dataset should be accounted for in the household head dataset. If a 'head of household' record in the valid person dataset does not have a corresponding records in the household head dataset, then the records were added into the household head dataset with response code 'non-respondent'.

All respondent household records on the valid household dataset had a corresponding 'head of household' (i.e. person record with value 1 on 'H_RELTOHEAD' variable) on the valid person dataset, and were aged 12 years or older. Table shows the distribution of the response codes on the household dataset used in constructing the household level sample weights. Therefore, the final 'head of household' dataset used in the construction of the household level sample weights, taken to StatMx for calibration, contained 19 016 respondent households with a valid 'head of household'.

Individual Dataset

GPSJS 2018/19 has an extra level of selection where one person, 16 years or older, was selected per respondent household to complete Part 2: Sections 4 to 9 of the GPSJS 2018/19 questionnaire. The individual dataset used in constructing the individual level sample weights must account for one individual per respondent household record containing at least one eligible individual, i.e. it needs to account for all valid eligible individuals selected, but also including those respondent households with eligible individuals but no valid selected individual. In addition to the validity and consistency checks conducted in the preparation of the valid household and person datasets, a number of checks are conducted in preparation of the individual dataset. This includes checks on the individual result codes and the mapping of these codes to the three response categories used for weighting.

The valid person record dataset contained 68 570 valid person records from 19 016 respondent households (see Section 0). The following checks were conducted:

- That all the respondent household records within the valid person dataset contained at least a single eligible individual. If the valid person dataset contained respondent household records such that all individuals were ineligible, i.e. age below 16, then the respondent household records were considered to be out-of-scope for Part 2: Sections 4 to 9 of the questionnaire. These records were excluded from the individual dataset for weighting purposes.

Amongst the valid person records, a total of 46 461 person records were eligible individuals aged 16 years or older, corresponding to 19 016 respondent households.

The 'GPSJS2018_19_INDIV_FINAL_010719' dataset is a person-level dataset with 19 016 records.

The dataset was checked for the following:

- That all the individual records on the individual dataset had a valid person number corresponding to the person number of the selected individual in the corresponding respondent household. If the individual dataset contained individual records such that the person number did not correspond with the selected individual, then the individual was enumerated in error and is out of sample. These records were excluded from the individual dataset for weighting purposes.
- That all the individual records on the individual dataset were eligible persons aged 16 years or older. If the individual dataset contained individual records that were ineligible, i.e. a person aged below 16 years from a household with no eligible individuals, then the individual response codes on the individual dataset used in constructing the individual level sample weights were changed to 'out-of-scope'. On the other hand, if the under-aged individual was from a household with eligible individuals, then the individuals' response code were changed to 'non-respondent'.
- Against the valid person record dataset, if the individual dataset contained selected individual records such that the corresponding selected individual was not on the valid person dataset, then the individual response codes on the individual dataset were changed from 'respondent' to 'non-respondent'.
- Against the respondent households with eligible individuals, if there was a respondent household with eligible individuals without a corresponding respondent household on the individual dataset, then the selected individual was not enumerated; another individual other than the selected individual was enumerated, or no individual was selected from the respondent household. These respondent household records were added onto the individual dataset as non-respondents, as the household records did contain eligible individuals but no response was obtained from them.
- Further, if the individual dataset contained selected individual records such that the corresponding household record was not on the dataset of respondent households with eligible individuals, then the selected individual records did not form part of a respondent household. These records were excluded from the individual dataset for weighting purposes.

All individual records had a valid person number, however, this could not be validated to be corresponding to the person number of the selected individual in the corresponding household. This was due to inconsistencies in generating the person number of the selected person during enumeration, as confirmed by survey area. Also, all individual records were of the eligible age of 16 years and older. All individual records had a corresponding household record on the dataset of respondent households with eligible individuals, and all respondent households with eligible individuals had a corresponding respondent household on the individual dataset.

The valid individual dataset used in constructing the individual level sample weights contained 19 016 responding households with eligible individuals. Table shows the final individual level response distribution. Out of the 19 016 in-scope individual records, 46 (0,24%) were non-respondent individuals. The non-respondent individuals were excluded from the individual dataset after applying the non-response adjustments during weighting. The final individual dataset taken to StatMx for calibration contained 18 970 records.

Table 5: Final Individual Level Response Distribution

Response Code	Frequency	Per cent
Response	18 970	99,76
Non-response	46	0,24

7.5 Estimation

The final survey weights are used to obtain the estimates for various domains of interest; for example, the victimisation level in South Africa, South Africans' perceptions of crime levels in the country, etc.

7.6 Reliability of the survey estimates

In this report, every estimate will be assigned a quality level based on the coefficient of variation (CV) of the estimate. Coefficient of variation is a measure of the relative size of error defined as

The South African Statistical Quality Assurance Framework (SASQAF) prescribes four quality levels based on a number of criteria, including the coefficient of variation. Each quality level will be labelled by colour (flag) as defined in the table below.

Table 1: Quality classification of estimates

Coefficient of variation range	Level	Interpretation
0 – 16,5		Quality statistics (reliable estimates)
16,6 – 33,4		Acceptable estimate (use with caution)
33,5 – 100,0		Poor estimate (not fit for use)

The survey package of the R software was used to calculate the estimates and the CVs. The package is specifically designed for analysis of data from complex surveys. Every computation using the survey package requires specification of three key design parameters, namely the strata, clusters (PSUs) and final weights.

Estimates with CVs highlighted in orange must not be used as they are of poor quality. These poor quality estimates are left in the table just for completeness. The poor estimates are also presented in faint black as a further indication that they should not be used.

7.7 Comparability with previous surveys

While redesigning VOCS into GPSJS some questions were modified for greater accuracy and in order to align with international reporting demands (e.g. SDGs). This caused a break of series for affected questions, in particular questions on 12-month experience of crime. The question on 5-year experience of crime was not changed and hence there is no break of series. The 5-year trends were therefore used as a proxy for the 12-month series as the two follow similar patterns. Similarity of shapes of the two series makes it possible to predict increase or decrease of crime during the past 12 months using the 5-year series.

7.8 Limitations of crime victimisation surveys

Victimisation surveys are likely to produce higher crime estimates than police-reported administrative data. This may be due to the fact that many crimes are not reported to the police. Victim surveys deal with incidents which may not necessarily match the legal definition of crime. Although data from crime victim surveys are likely to elicit better disclosure of criminal incidents than data from police records, they can also be subject to undercounting, as some victims may be reluctant to disclose information, particularly for incidents of a sensitive nature, such as sexual offences.

The accuracy of statistics is influenced by the ability of people to recall past victimisations. The longer the elapsed time period, the less likely it is that an incident will be recalled accurately. Surveys are also subject to sampling and non-sampling errors.

7.9 Differences between victim surveys and police-reported data

The most basic difference between the two types of crime measurement is the method of data collection. Police-reported statistics obtain data from police administrative records. In contrast, victim surveys collect personal information from individuals about their victimisation experiences through face-to-face interviews. The survey covers victims' experiences of crime at microdata level, including the impact of the crime on victims.

Police-reported statistics normally collate information on all incidents reported to a variety of police stations. Victim surveys ask a sample of the population about their experience and, if well designed, this sample should be representative of the population as a whole. Although police statistics and victim surveys normally cover comparable geographic areas, if appropriately nationally representative, victim surveys may exclude some categories of victims, such as very young children or persons residing in institutions such as prisons, hospitals, care centres or military barracks.

8. Definition of terms

Arson – unlawful and intentional damaging of an immovable structure which is suitable for human occupation or the storing of goods and which belongs to another, by setting fire to it with the intention to prejudice another.

Assaults and threats of assault (including domestic violence) – attacked, physically beaten or threatened by an attacker in a frightening way without the attacker taking anything from the victim.

College for crooks – a place where people learn how to become crooks/criminals or how to become even better crooks/criminals.

Consumer fraud – selling something to a person or delivering a service, cheating that person in terms of the quantity or quality of the goods/service. Also includes cases where someone provides misleading information and tricks a person into buying something or signing documents.

Hijacking(of motor vehicle) – unlawful and intentional forceful removal and appropriation of a motor vehicle from the occupant(s).

Home robbery – unlawful and intentional forceful removal and appropriation of tangible property from residential premises while there is someone at home.

Housebreaking/burglary – committed by a person who unlawfully and intentionally breaks into a building or similar structure, used for human habitation, and enters or penetrates it with part of his or her body, or with an instrument with which he or she intends to control something on the premises with the intention to commit a crime on the premises. The occupant of the dwelling is NOT at home at the time.

Imputation – a procedure for entering a value for a specific data item where the response is missing or unusable.

Individual crimes – affect a single person rather than an entire household, for example, when a camera is stolen.

Malicious damage to property – the unlawful and intentional damaging of property belonging to another.

Motor vehicle vandalism – deliberately damaging a vehicle or parts of a vehicle, such as a car, van, truck or pick-up, for example through scratching the paintwork.

Murder – unlawful and intentional killing of another human being.

Panga – large cutting knife with a broad blade.

Parole – release of prisoners from prison for a specific amount of time based on prisoners giving their word to keep to certain restrictions.

Perpetrator – person(s) who commits an illegal or criminal act.

Physical force – bodily power, strength, energy or might.

In the context of this survey, physical force (v) includes actions where the human body is used to compel/force someone to do something or to hurt or kill someone. It can include actions such as pushing, pressing, shoving, hitting, kicking, throttling, etc.

Property crime – crime where a person's property was threatened but not the person, such as theft of property, burglary, etc.

Prosecutor/state advocate – legal specialist (lawyer/advocate) whose job it is to make a case on behalf of the State against someone accused of criminal behaviour.

Robbery involving force – involves taking something from a person by the use of force or the threat of force, for example, pointing a knife at someone.

Sexual offences (including sexual assault, rape and domestic sexual abuse) – refers to grabbing, touching someone's private parts or sexually assaulting or raping someone. In terms of the Sexual Offences Act (Act No. 32 of 2007) section 5(1), a person ('A') who unlawfully and intentionally sexually violates a complainant ('B'), without the consent of B, is guilty of the offence of sexual assault; (2) a person ('A') who unlawfully and intentionally inspires the belief in a complainant ('B') that B will be sexually violated is guilty of the offence of sexual assault.

Stick/club – a long bar or stick made of wood, plastic or other material and used as a weapon.

Vandalism – deliberate damage to property belonging to someone else

Violent crime – crimes where a person was threatened, injured or killed are violent crimes. The crime could be committed using a threat of force, physical force or a weapon. These are crimes against a person and include robbery, assault, sexual assault/offences, murder, hijacking, etc.

Weapon – an object used to cause harm or death to human beings or other living creatures. Can include knives, guns, pangas and knobkerries, metal or wooden bars/rods, broken glass, rocks, bricks, etc.
